Using Films on Demand

Use Films on Demand If you're looking for documentary or streaming video.

Where is the database Films on Demand?

1. Go to the Library Homepage
2. Select Databases
3. Click Alphabetical Listing of Databases
4. Scroll to the letter F. Or, click on the letter F
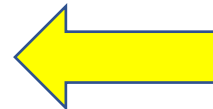

Alphabetical Listing of Databases

| A | B | C | E | F | H | I | J | L | M | N | P | R | S | T | | W |

5. Select Films on Demand

Databases Beginning with "F"

Films on Demand: Master Academic Collection

This database provides access to hundreds of educational films and documentaries on a variety of subjects.

6. You may have to login to the resource (information on how located in other handout)

Search Films on Demand

Search 42,655 titles and 321,152 segments   🔍   Advanced Search

There is a search interface with Films on Demand.   In the search bar, you will see that you can search through titles and segments. Basically, the title is the name of the film and the segment is a 'chapter' of the film. Alternatively, you can also browse for films. You can look at producers, such as National Geographic, History, or HBO Documentaries. You can also look by Subject. To browse this way, click on the menu icon

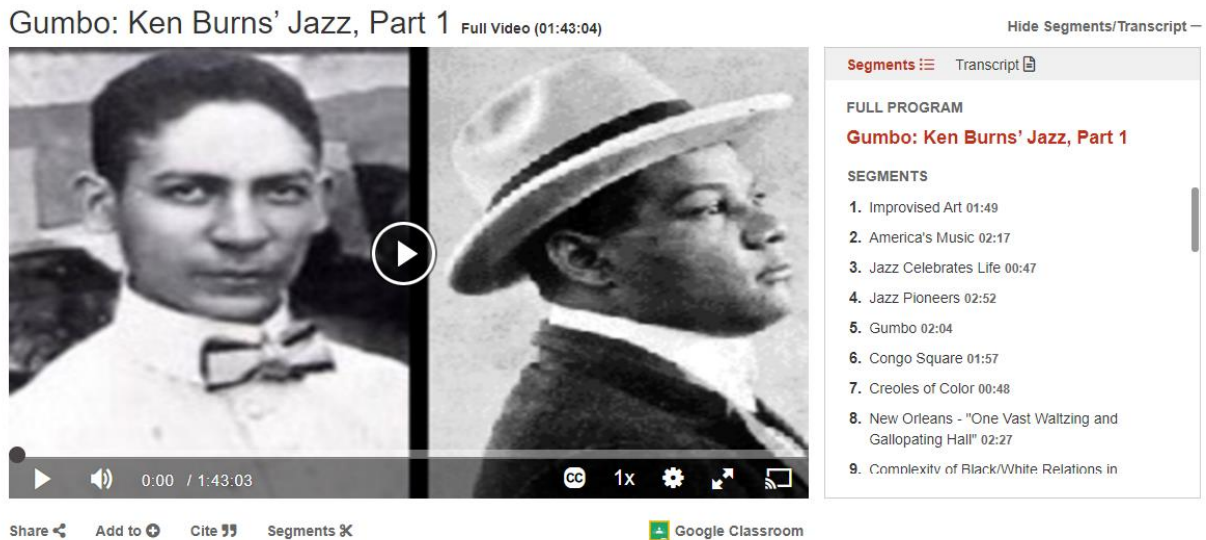

SUBJECTS	POPULAR CATEGORIES	FEATURED PRODUCERS
Allied Health	Best of Ken Burns	ABC News
Anthropology	Black Lives Matter	American Museum Of Natural History
Archival Films & Newsreels	Environmental Issues	EuroArts Music International
Area Studies	Events in History	Films for the Humanities & Sciences
Art & Architecture	Exclusive to Films On Demand	First Run Features
Biology	Great Documentaries	NewsHour Productions
Business & Economics	Inventor Month	PBS
Careers & Job Search	Most Popular	Seven Dimensions
Communication	New Music	TED
Computer Science and Information Technology	Political Science	The Green Interview
View All >	View All >	View All >

Using A Film in Films on Demand

Below is an image of what a film looks like in Films on Demand. It is similar to Youtube in both layout and operation.

A useful feature of Films on Demand is the ability to search the Transcript of a film. Click the Transcript button and a transcript is provided. Search for a term and the film will sync to the words on the transcript. There is also a citation button if you decide to use a film in a paper.